Guitar Mansion

Guitar Mansion (ca. 1862), otherwise known as "Confederate Hill," is a Victorian Italianate restoration residing on beautiful 6.3 acres m/l currently zoned C-P/A-1 under H-P (Historic Preservation Overlay). This former B&B with approx 4,300 sq. ft. includes a Master Bedroom suite and 3 Civil-War themed Guest Bedrooms. Original construction features a music room with bay window, parlor, dining room, office, 2-story glassed gallery/sunroom, hardwood floors, and rock-walled cellar. A tasteful modern kitchen and 3 full baths/2 half baths accommodate contemporary needs. Ornate accents include 7 fireplaces (2 with original cast-iron mantels) as well as tall ceilings with medallions, chandeliers, and a walnut spiral staircase. Historic outbuildings include a smokehouse and summer kitchen. A Gazebo and walled garden further invite outdoor gatherings. Located in the vibrant University community of Columbia, Missouri, this property would also make a splendid family retreat or private residence. On National Register of Historic Places since 1993. Amenities include: Carpet, vinyl, hardwood, gas heating, 2 central air units, Fire Shield Alarm System, Handicap Access on Main Floor, Dishwasher, Disposal, Jenn-air Electric Range/Oven.

Historic Baker Plantation House (ca. 1853) is a substantial two-story brick residence in Federal Transitional style. Missouri home of Unionist legislator Sylvester Baker, it survived attempted burning by Confederate guerrillas during the infamous Danville Raid of October 14, 1864. This antebellum home (approx. 3,780 sq. ft.) retains its original construction features with two-story portico, wraparound rear veranda, pine flooring, notable woodwork and door locks, cherry wood central staircase, seven fireplaces, two parlors, dining room, kitchen, pantry, cellar, and four large bedrooms with floor-to-ceiling Victorian closets. Some 4.6 acres (zoned commercial) remain of the original plantation, which were last used as a heritage tourism site for Civil War reenactments alongside visitation of the home as a period museum. The property includes a two-story historic barn converted into a modern antique store (with restroom/office) and restoration workshop, also a small fully-equipped café converted from the historic smokehouse. The tract fronts directly on both Interstate 70 and the service road some 850 ft. with unparalleled visibility; commercial billboard conveys. On National Register of Historic Places. Three miles to Graham Cave State Park, one mile to Interstate exit; utilities onsite with 400 ft. drilled well. Potential for modern residence or B&B, restaurant, antique outlet, campground, etc. One 1/2 Bath is in antique store, NOT residential. Baker House brick walls are 14/16" thick, has outdated electric system, but with wall outlets/light fixtures. Baker did have bathroom fixtures installed in the "pantry room" which have been removed (plumbing still under floor). Modern café has updated utilities with appliances plus sink, water heater, paddle fan, service counter/seating with total 451 sq. ft. to renovated building. Approx. 40% of lower story of barn has been renovated to 1,344 total sq. ft. retail space with modern 200 amp electric system, HVAC unit, restroom, 40 gal. water heater, utility sink, office, shelving/counter/display racks, 2 bay windows, poured concrete floors; last used as antique/book/gift shop. Upper story of barn has electric also and approximately 2/3 of area was used as workshop/storage for renovation woodworking. About 3,264 sq. ft. per story or total of 6,528 sq. ft. for barn structure. Various cisterns on property.
